

Eximia's T&Cs for the purchase of our Communications Tax Package

Fair use of content supplied

- License to use: Eximia grants the client a non-exclusive, non-transferable and revocable license to use the content provided solely for internal use. It can be used for educational, training, or informational purposes for all UK employees within their company, its subsidiaries or Group. This license does not extend to any other third parties or external use outside the client's organisation.
- Ownership: Eximia is the exclusive owner of all intellectual property rights and proprietary information related to the content. Your organisation acknowledges it is not purchasing the IP but being granted a limited license to use the content as specified.
- Restrictions: Reproduction, distribution, or sharing of this content outside of the organisation is strictly prohibited. You are not permitted to create derivative works based on the content, nor sublicense, sell, or otherwise transfer the rights granted under this license to any other party.
- Attribution: Visible attribution to Eximia as content creator is not required, but if somebody were to enquire, Eximia should be credited.
- Monitoring and compliance: The organisation is responsible for monitoring the use of the content to ensure compliance with these terms and applicable copyright laws.

Content accuracy and updates

- Accuracy at time of supply: The content provided by Eximia is accurate and up-to-date based on the relevant legislation and HMRC processes at the time of supply. We have taken reasonable care to ensure the correctness and completeness of the information provided.
- Nature of content: The content provided by Eximia is created solely for informational purposes and signposting only. It is intended to assist the client's employees in their understanding of the topic and associated processes, directing them to relevant resources. The content does not constitute, and should not be construed as, legal, financial, tax, or professional advice.
- Modification of content: You are permitted to modify the content as you deem appropriate for your internal uses only.
- No ongoing obligation for updates: Due to the evolving nature of laws, regulations, and HMRC procedures, Eximia cannot guarantee that the content will remain accurate or applicable over time. It is the sole responsibility of the client to verify the accuracy and relevance of the content before each use.
- Availability of updated versions: Should legislation, regulations, or HMRC processes change after the content has been supplied, Eximia is not responsible for updating the original content. Clients may return to Eximia to purchase updated versions of the content as needed.

- Disclaimer of liability: Eximia shall not be liable for any losses, damages, or liabilities arising from the use of outdated or incorrect information that has not been validated by the client before use. Clients are advised to seek updated content or carry out professional reviews from their legal and/or tax advisers where necessary. Eximia disclaims any responsibility or liability for any loss or damage that may arise from reliance on the content without consulting a qualified professional.

General terms

- Enforcement: Violations of these terms may result in the termination of access to the content, and legal action.
- Jurisdiction: These terms are governed by UK law.
- Termination of license: The license is granted without an expiry date. Eximia can only revoke the license if these terms and conditions are broken, in which case, the client must cease all use of the content and, if requested, return or destroy all copies in their possession.

By purchasing the content and taking receipt of the content of the communications package, the organisation agrees to abide by all terms outlined.
